YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL

“Young people should be at the forefront of global change and innovation. Empowered, they can be key agents for development and peace... Let us ensure that all young people have every opportunity to participate fully in the lives of their societies.”

— Kofi Annan

Young people are powerful advocates for social action, and their activism has the potential to be transformative on a global scale. India in particular has much to gain from youth’s social engagement. The world’s youngest country, it faces a host of complex issues—from skills training to climate change—that will soon be felt by the rest of the world. Unlocking the potential of young people to uplift, develop and strengthen India will have an energizing effect on social development worldwide.

With 12 chapters across the U.S., AIF has built a strong community dedicated to social and economic change in India. The Youth Advisory Council is an expansion of that work: channeling the energy, passion and dedication of young people in high school and college to create meaningful change in India.
